Doxxing 起底公审

Somebody may think that doxxing is a act of justice, but in fact, collecting others' personal information and disclosing them on the internet, social media, and public platforms without agreement of the information owner would lead to offending personal rights of privacy, and may offend the personal data (privacy) ordinance. We encourage students to be aware of the personal manner on internet and being a responsible online citizen.

11 Beware of Telephone Deception

提防电话骗案

There are a wide variety of defrauding tricks happening in Hong Kong. The most common scenarios include:

- Made phone calls directly or via the pre-recorded voice messages, posing as officials of Immigration Department, law enforcement agencies or staff of any governmental organizations of Hong Kong or the Mainland, telling the victims that they have committed crime or were involved in identity theft. During the call, fraudsters may even be able to tell the names of the victims. Victims would be asked to provide sensitive information such as account numbers and PIN codes of personal banking or e-payment platform for ceasing suspicion.
- Sent fraudulent phishing emails or SMS messages with embedded malicious hyperlink for getting e-payment platform account number and password.
- Made live video call showing the face and voice of victims' family or friends with AI deepfake technology, convinced the victims to transfer money or make values top-up.

Students are advised to be watchful and pay attention:

1. To help detect telephone deception, the Office of the Communications Authority stipulates that telephone operators are required to insert a "+" sign in the calling number display of mobile phones as a prefix for all incoming calls originating from outside Hong Kong. If you receive unknown calls with the prefix "+852" which appears to be from a local number, you should be alert to the possible telephone deception.
2. If the callers claim themselves as officers of law enforcement agencies or government organisations or e-payment companies and request for your personal particulars and assets under various pretexts, contact corresponding offices to verify the identity of the callers.
3. Pay attention to the video quality of a video call, call over to your family or friends for verification after the video call ends.
4. Do not disclose your personal particulars to strangers, including your HKID numbers, bank account numbers, online banking accounts and PIN codes.
5. Do not download any unknown applications or click on any links or open any attachments embedded in suspicious emails, or input any information into unknown applications or websites.
6. Please call the Police's "Anti-Scam Helpline 18222" if in doubt or report any suspected case. For any emergency, please call 999.

近年有不法之徒利用各式各样的行骗手段在香港骗取金钱，常见情况包括：

- 致电受害人或以预录语音形式冒充内地或本港入境处、执法人员政府机构或其他政府机官员，讹称事主触犯法例或个人身份被盗用，他们甚至可以说出事主的姓名，使用伪造资料令受害人相信自己涉案，从而要求事主提供个人、银行户口及密码等敏感资料以助洗脱嫌疑。
- 发出附有不明链接的钓鱼式欺诈电邮或短信等等，以骗取受害人的网上银行及电子钱包账户号码及密码。
- 以实时视讯致电受害人，透过人工智能深伪技术展露出其亲友之容貌及声线，要求转账或充值。

请同学提高警觉并注意：

1. 通讯事务管理局办公室规定各电话话办商必须在流动电话的「来电显示」中加入「+」号，以识别源自香港境外的来电。如接到「+852」字头的陌生来电，即表示该来电是假扮本地来电，很可能是诈骗电话；
2. 如遇到有人自称执法人员或政府机构或电子钱包公司职员，以不同理由指示市民交出个人资料及财产，应该主动查证及再三向相关机构或公司核实来电者的身份；
3. 留意视讯通话之画面质素，在通话结束后，致电亲友本人查證。
4. 切勿向陌生人透露个人资料：包括身份证号码、银行户口号码、网上银行及电子钱包账户及密码；
5. 切勿下载不明来历的应用程序以及打开可疑电邮内的链接或附件，或者将任何数据输入到不明来历的应用程序或网址。
6. 如有任何怀疑，可致电警方「防骗易」咨询热线18222。如遇上紧急情况，请致电999求助。
